8. INFORMATION ON THE NATIONAL HIGHER EDUCATION SYSTEM

Information on the national education system providing a context for the qualification and the type of higher education that awarded it.

Education in Malta at all levels is governed by the Education Act, enacted in 1988 and amended in 2006 and with subsidiary legislation. It is the responsibility of the Ministry for Education and Employment (MEDE).

Early childhood education and care, available for children from the age of three months up to two years and nine months, is provided at centres run by both state and private entities. Children between the ages of two years and nine months and five years attend Kindergarten centres which are operated by the both State and non-State Schools

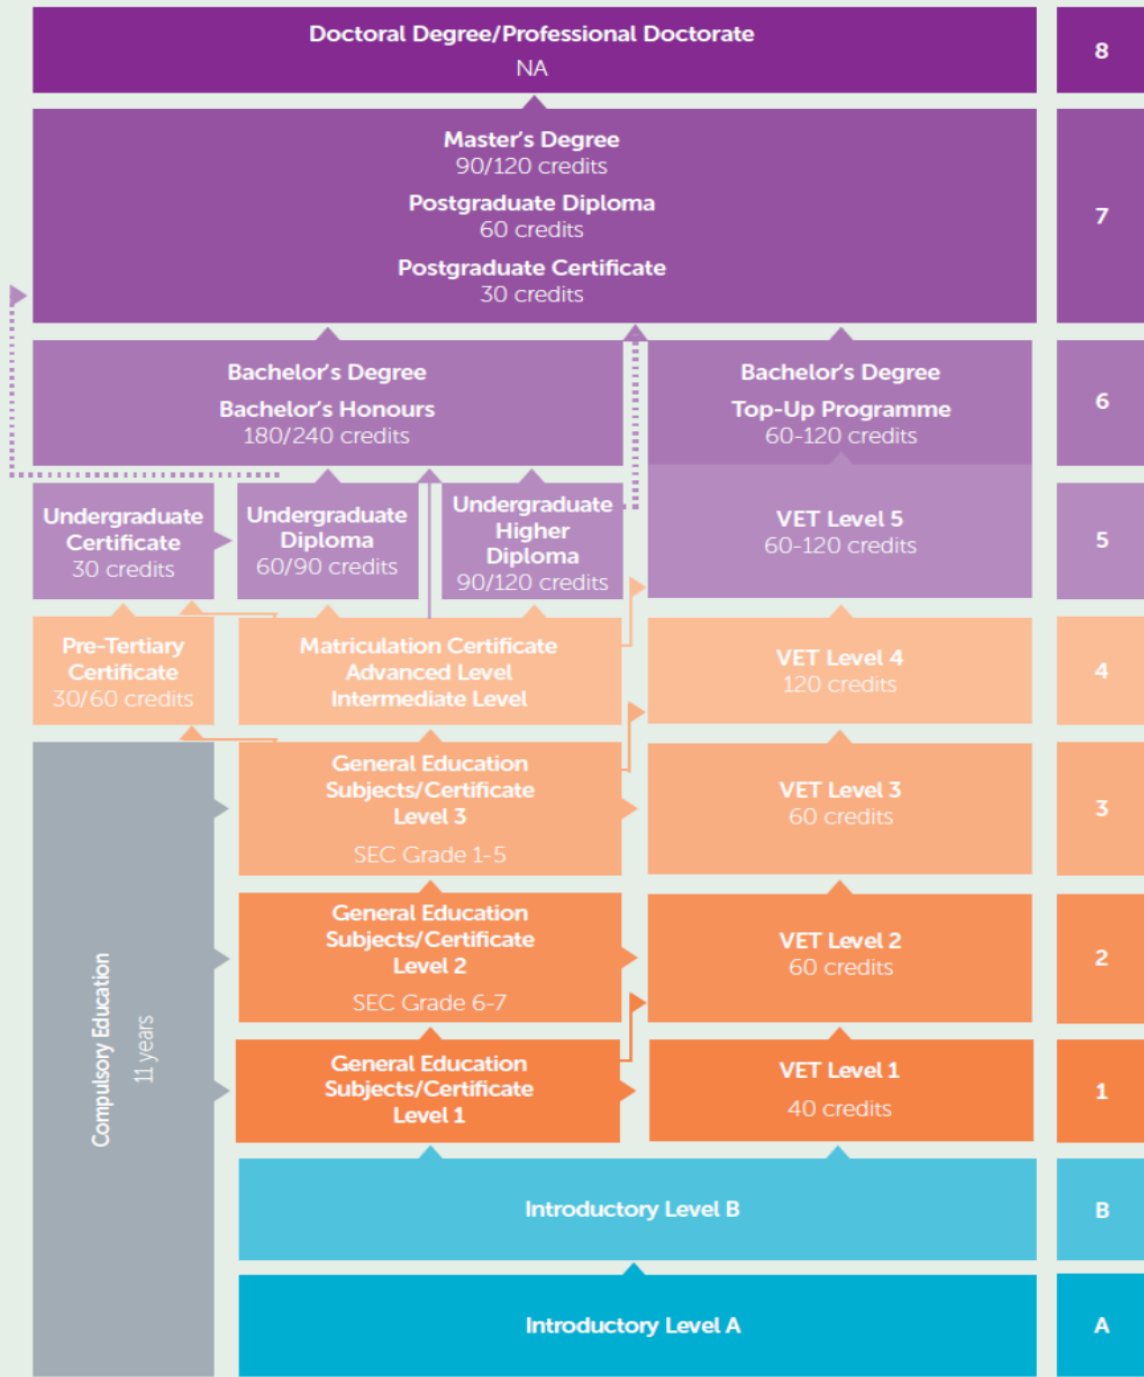

Compulsory education, which is of eleven years' duration and covers ages from 5 to 16 years, consists of two stages: primary education (from the age of 5 to 11) and secondary education (from 11 to 16 years of age). About 55% of compulsory education is provided by state schools; 35% is provided by Catholic Church schools which are largely subsidised by the state, and the remaining c. 10% are private schools that also receive indirect state support mainly through the subsidy of provision for learners with special needs, and (as from 2018-19) the provision of school transport.

Secondary education has both general academic as well as vocational/applied components. Following compulsory education, students can choose to follow a two-year programme (commonly called VI Form or equivalent) that normally leads to tertiary education, or to follow post-compulsory vocational programmes. The main provider of tertiary education is the University of Malta, a state-funded institution that offers courses up to EQF/MQF Level 8. The main providers of post-compulsory vocational education are both state funded: the Malta College of Arts, Science and Technology (MCAST) that offers a wide range of vocational courses up to EQF/MQF Level 6, and the Institute of Tourism Studies (ITS) that offers tourism-oriented courses up to EQF/MQF Level 5. Private post-secondary, further and tertiary provision is also becoming an increasingly important presence in the market, both for local as well as international students.

Lifelong learning courses for adult learners are provided both during the day and also as evening classes both in state educational institutions as well as by private providers. Some of the courses are run in collaboration with Local Councils to facilitate accessibility to adult learners. Courses cover a wide array of subjects and topics and can be followed to acquire formal qualifications or for personal self-development.

Gestalt Psychotherapy Training Institute Malta (GPTIM)

EAPTI-GPTIM is a Higher Education Institution based on experiential, experimental and existential philosophies. The Gestalt Psychotherapy Training Institute Malta (GPTIM), as it was originally called, was formally set up on the 21st of June 1996 by Dr Lidija Pecotic, who is still its Director today. Dr Pecotic had originally opened and directed the first Gestalt school in Belgrade with students and lecturers from different parts of the ex-Yugoslavia and abroad, before the fratricidal wars of the Balkans in the 1990s. Through GPTIM, Dr Pecotic continued to support erstwhile colleagues and students throughout the successive Balkans conflicts in what were now the sundered new national realities of Croatia, Bosnia & Herzegovina, Serbia, Montenegro and Macedonia. This personal-professional network was not only a critical human and professional lifeline for the colleagues of Dr Pecotic, but one of the few effective ways how the psychological needs of hundreds of thousands of civilians traumatised by war could be addressed. Out of this work grew the Gestalt Institutes of: Serbia (which as explained, was the original Gestalt Institute since 1990, and which is still led by Dr Lidija Pecotic), Macedonia, Bosnia & Herzegovina, Croatia and Montenegro, working closely with and under the oversight of GPTIM.

In 2005 GPTIM achieved accreditation by the European Association for Psychotherapy (EAP) and the European Association for Gestalt Psychotherapy (EAGT), the first Gestalt Institute to do so, and acquired the name EAPTI-GPTIM. The EAPTI title is given to every institute in Europe that achieves EAP and EAGT accreditation. EAPTI-GPTIM actively supported the application and process for accreditation of the ex-Yugoslavia Gestalt institutes with which it was networked. Indeed, three of them have now become EAPTI: Serbia: EAPTI-Studio za edukaciju Beograd (2008); Macedonia: EAPTI-Gestalt Institute Skopje (2008), and Croatia: EAPTI-Psihika d.o.o. (2017).

In 2018 the need was felt to formalise the academic collaboration between the EAPTI-GPTIM and its partner Gestalt Institutes around Europe. This led to the formation of the European Gestalt Psychotherapy Network, or EGN. The relationship between EAPTI-GPTIM and EGN is not that of a franchise or simply of local providers of courses accredited in Malta. EGN is a permanent transnational partnership in which EAPTI-GPTIM is the first amongst equals. It exists only in function of the provision of EAPTI-GPTIM courses accredited by NCFHE and delivered tale e quale throughout the Network. The Masters programme for which this Diploma Supplement refers is thus accredited to and run by EAPTI-GPTIM in collaboration with EGN.

In teaching, learning and practising psychotherapy, a holistic, relational, dialogic and contextual approach is central to the values and philosophy of EAPTI-GPTIM and the EGN, whereby the focus is on the total person as an individual and in relation to others and the field.

The student's personal participation in the therapeutic process is crucial. Through training his/her unique contribution is valued and refined, based on the belief that ultimately, it is the student (or trainee therapist) that is the main 'instrument' within the context of assessment, intervention and change.

The rationale is that by providing experiential learning, the student has a first-hand experience of the process of therapy and of personal growth. In parallel the student, through supervised practice and professional development, learns to apply the knowledge, understanding and skills of becoming a Psychotherapist / Gestalt Psychotherapist. Finally, through this combined process of practical experience and theory, the student is supported towards becoming equipped, rigorous and competent to assume the responsibility necessary to apply all that has been learnt to the context within which s/he will eventually work with the clients population.
